This is one of our more robust widgets available. It allows you to display a image on one side, and text on the other:

Buy Online

It's our BIGGEST tire sale of the season!
Get special deals on our entire inventory.
Now is the time to make sure your tires and ready for the winter season!

You also have the option of having a button, or 2 to link to something. Or leave, those fields blank and have no button at all--the choice is yours!

The configuration of this widget is a bit longer than our others--so I'll break it down:

First, select or import an image to use. The recommended image size is 270 w x 190 h in pixels. Although if a different height is preferred--that is okay. It is really only the width that needs to be 270 pixels.

Next, fill out your header text, and your body text using the appropriate fields. The header text could be a title of an article, name of a product, or something else you want to feature. Use the body text as supporting evidence to what you are presenting, or to introduce your call to action:

Header Text:

Buy Online

Body Text:

The screenshot shows an email editor interface. At the top, there is a 'Header Text' field containing the text 'Buy Online'. Below this is the 'Body Text' section, which includes a rich text editor toolbar. The toolbar contains buttons for 'Source', undo/redo, bold (B), italic (I), underline (U), text color (A), a 'Styles' dropdown menu, bulleted and numbered list, indent, outdent, text alignment (left, center, right, justified), link, unlink, insert image, insert table, settings, and source code. The main text area contains the following text: 'It's our BIGGEST tire sale of the season! Get special deals on our entire inventory. Now is the time to make sure your tires and ready for the winter season!'.

Lastly, if you would like to use the buttons, fill out the fields for button 1 and/or 2. If either of these fields are left blank the buttons will not appear.
